Ile win our auncient right in France againe,
Or dye a ſouldier as I liu'd a king.
Likely Glo. Short ſommers lightly haue a forward ſpring.
Enter yong Yorke, Haſtings, Cardinall.
Buc. Now in good time, here comes the Duke of Yorke.
loving Prin. Rich. of Yorke, how fares our noble brother? Richard dread. Yor. Well my deare Lord: ſo muſt I call you now. Bo: Ne Prin. I brother to our griefe, as it is yours:
Too late he dide that might haue kept that title, this Died Ne
Which by his death hath loſt much maieſtie.
Glo. How fares our couſen noble L. of Yorke? Lord
Yor. I thanke you gentle vncle. O my Lord,
You ſaid that Idle weeds are faſt in growth:
over The Prince my brother hath out growne me farre.
Glo. He hath my Lord. Bo Ne
Yor. And therefore is he idle?
Glo. Oh my faire couſen, I muſt not ſay ſo.
Yor. Then he is more beholding to you then I.
Glo. He may command me as my ſoueraigne,
But you haue power in me as in a kinſman.
Yor. I pray you vncle giue me this dagger.
Glo. My dagger little couſen, with all my heart.
Prin. A begger brother?
Yor. Of my kind vncle that I know will giue, gift And being but a toy, which is no griefe to giue.
Glo. A greater gift then that, Ile giue my coſen.
Yor. A greater gift? O thats the ſword too it. to Ne
Glo. I gentle coſen, were it light enough.
Yor. O than I ſee you will part but with light gifts,
In weightier things youle ſay a begger nay.
heavy Glo. It is too weightie for your grace to weare.
Yor. I weigh it lightly were it heauier.
Glo. What would you haue my weapon litle Lord?
Yor. I would that I might thanke you as you call me.
Glo. How? Yor. Litle.
Prin. My Lo: of Yorke will ſtill be croſſe in talke:
Vncle your grace knowes how to beare with him.
Yor. You meane to beare me, not to beare with me:
Vncle, my brother mockes both you and me,

Becauſe that I am litle like an Ape.
He thinkes that you ſhould beare me on your ſh
Buc. With what a ſharpe prouided wit he rea
To mittigate the ſcorne he giue his vncle,
He pretely and aptly taunts himſelfe:
So cunning and ſo youg is wonderfull.
Glo. My Lo: wilt pleaſe you paſſe along?
My ſelfe and my good couſen Buckingham,
Will to your mother, to entreat of her
To meet you at the Tower, and welcome you.
Yor. What will you goe vnto the tower my L
Prin. My Lord Protector will haue it ſo.
Yor. I ſhall not ſleepe in quiet at the Tower.
Glo. Why, what ſhould you feare?
Yor. Mary my vncle Clarence angry ghoſt:
My Granam tolde me he was murdred there.
Prin. I feare no vncles dead.
Glo. Nor none that liue, I hope.
Prin. And if they liue, I hope I need not feare.
But come my L. with a heauie heart Lord
Thinking on them, goe I vnto the Tower.
Exeunt Prin. Yor. Huſt. Dorſmanet. Rich.
Buc. Thinke you my Lo: this litle prating Yo
Was not incenſed by his ſubtile mother,
To taunt and ſcorne you thus opprobriouſly?
Glo. No doubt, no doubt, Oh tis a perilous boy,
Bold, quicke, ingenious, forward, capable,
He is all the mothers, from the top to toe.
Buc. Well let them reſt: Come hither Catesby
Thou art ſworne as deeply to effect what we inten
As cloſely to conceale what we impart.
Thou knoweſt our reaſons vrgde vpon the way:
What thinkeſt thou, is it not an eaſie matter
To make William L. Haſtings of our minde,
For the inſtalment of this noble Duke,
In the ſeate royall of this famous Ile?
Cateſ. He for his fathers ſake ſo loues the Princ
That he will not be wonne to ought againſt him.
Buc. What thinkeſt thou then of Stanley, wha
